Panorama (journalpanorama.org), the online, open-access, peer-reviewed journal of the Association of Historians of American Art (AHAA), is seeking an Exhibition Reviews editor to join the journal for a three-year term beginning with our November 2024 issue. This position comes with an annual stipend of $1,000, prorated for 2024.

In alignment with our mission to “embrace the study of the diverse artistic production that circulates within and beyond the constructed geographies of what is now the United States” and “model collaboration, inclusivity, and dialogue,” we encourage applications from diverse scholars, including those who may be new to the Association of Historians of American Art and/or Panorama readership. Museum professionals, independent scholars, academics, and those who work in adjacent or interdisciplinary fields grounded in art-historical inquiry and visual and material culture study are welcome. For more about Panorama: <https://journalpanorama.org/about>.

Ideal candidates will be organized and detail-oriented with an excellent record of scholarship and must be members in good standing of AHAA. Successful candidates should be comfortable with MS Word and Google Docs; Panorama will provide training in OJS, our online submission management system.

Reporting to the Executive Editors, the incumbent will work with a team of two other Exhibition Reviews editors to commission reviews of recent or ongoing exhibitions in the field of American art, provide authors with guidance in terms of editorial development, and ensure that they are following Panorama's style guide. Exhibition Reviews editors also participate in monthly conference calls and, as members of the full editorial team, work together to shape strategic planning for the journal. Each Exhibition Reviews editor is responsible for two or three 1,500–2,000-word reviews per issue. Panorama publishes twice a year, in June and November.

To apply for this position, please send a CV and statement of interest by August 1 to journalpanorama@gmail.com with the subject line “EXHIBITION REVIEWS EDITOR APPLICATION.”
